PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

A Great Show. Well Worth a Trip to Buffalo.

The Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, is certainly a great show. The illumination of the buildings at night by electricity is alone worth the trip. It surpasses anything of the kind ever before seen.

On Monday, September 2nd, the editor of this paper and his son went to Buffalo over the Lackawanna Railroad. Leaving here at 10:43 a. m. the train is due at Buffalo at 8 p. m. It is a charming ride through a beautiful country, and over a well equipped road. Vestibule trains with dining cars are run through from New York. We would suggest to any one desiring a chair in a parlor car, that it is advisable to secure it several days in advance.

Statler's Hotel is one of the most desirable places to stop. Trolley cars run from the depot direct to the hotel by getting a transfer at Niagara street. Coming back, a Main street car will land you at the depot without change.

The table and service at Statler's are excellent, and the rooms as comfortable as can be made in a temporary structure. One advantage in stopping there is that no time is lost in riding back and forth on the street cars. The hotel is just outside the Lincoln Park entrance. The rates are from $2.00 a day up.

It is not our intention to attempt a description of the exposition. What requires at least one week to see cannot be described in a single article. It is a great show, and everbody who can should see it.

It was our privilege to be present while President McKinley and party were there. We saw them arrive on Wednesday afternoon, at which time the salute of 21 guns fired in honor of the President broke some of the windows in his car, and Mrs. McKinley fainted away believing that it was an attempt to blow up the car with dynamite. We heard the President deliver his address on Thursday morning, being only about 25 feet from him, and almost directly in front. We saw the President pass in his carriage, bowing right and left to the applauding thousands, on his way to the Stadium; We saw him at the Stadium where he reviewed the 65th and 74th Regiments of New York Militia, and but for a change of plans we might have been in the Temple of Music when the hand of the dastardly assassin was raised against him.

On Thursday over 116,000 people were on the grounds, a cheering, applauding, good natured crowd of American citizens, willing to endure the scorching rays of the sun, and to be packed together like sardines in a box, for the sake of seeing and doing homage to the executive head of the nation. Everywhere the President was greeted with tumultuous applause, and no one dreamed that there was lurking in the crowd a villainous anarchist with murder in his heart and a pistol in his pocket, seeking an opportunity to strike down the President.

His opportunity came on Friday, when a public reception was held in the Temple of Music. With his right hand covered with a handkerchief under which was concealed a pistol, he approached the President, and as the latter extended a friendly hand, and bestowed upon him a kindly smile, this fiend in human form fired two balls into the abdomen of President McKinley, with intent to kill him. A more outrageous, unjustifiable, villainous, dastardly, contemptible act was never committed. By what would seem to be a direct interposition of Divine Providence, the wounds were not fatal, and the whole country is rejoicing today that the President has been spared, and is rapidly recovering.

A trip to Niagara Falls, of course, is always included when you go to Buffalo. At Prospect Park government carriages carry passengers around Goat Island, with stop-over privileges, for 15 cents. The Gorge Route by trolley to Queenstown and Lewiston costs $1.00, and is well worth it. The road goes down the Canadian side on the cliff, and comes up the American side along the very edge of the rapids.

A trip around Buffalo on the "Seeing Buffalo Coaches" costs but 50 cents, and gives one an excellent idea of the city. The coaches start from Statler's and make a two hours' trip through the city and along the lake front. They are the same ones used in Chicago during the World's Fair in 1893, and are drawn by six horses.

It has been our privilege to attend four different expositions, and that at Buffalo is the equal of any of them in most respects, while in a few respects it far surpasses them. Go and see it.

THE PRESIDENT.

President McKinley making his speech at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, on Thursday, September 5th, the day before he was shot. Sitting around him on the stand are Foreign Ministers, Cabinet officers, and other distinguished men. At his left is the United States Marine Band. Mrs. McKinley is behind the President and cannot be seen. This photograph was taken by G. Edward Elwell, Jr., who was about twenty-five feet from the President and could hear his speech distinctly.

A Prosperous Season.

This has been a prosperous year for this community. With good crops and fair prices for farmers, labor in demand at good wages, and general business profitable. This surely is a season when people generally can lay by something for a RAINY DAY, liable to come some time. Such accummulations should be safely placed where they can be neither lost, stolen or burned.

A. Z. SCHOCH, PRESIDENT. WM. H. HIDLAY, CASHIER.

PURSEL'S NEW STORE.

Enlarged and Improved, it is an Up to Date Establishment.

One of the oldest business houses in Columbia county stands on the corner of Main and Market streets, Bloomsburg. It was established in 1840 by William McKelvy & Co., and passed successively into the hands of McKelvy, Neal & Co., then to I. W. KcKelvy, and in 1894 it was purchased by F. P. Pursel and Samuel H. Harman. After a year Mr. Harman sold his half interest to Mr. Pursel who then became sole owner. For a number of years Mr. Pursel had been the head clerk and buyer in I. W. McKelvy's store, so that he entered upon the undertaking with useful experience and a thorough knowledge of the business. His wide acquaintance, his general popularity, his well-known character as a young man of strict integrity coupled with his experience, gave him a start such as few young men who engage in an enterprise for themselves are favored with. His venture has proven a success from the start. An infusion of young blood and new ideas into the old store brightened it up wonderfully. New lines of goods were gradually added and the business enlarged until the old store room became entirely too small, and the enlargement of the building became imperative. A few months ago this was decided upon and the work began. The old frame storehouse which had long been an unsightly object was torn down, and a brick addition erected to the rear of the store building. This addition is 50 by 60 feet, two stories high, with a cemented basement of same dimensions. This makes three floors each 114 by 50 feet, with storage room besides in the third floor. Each floor has 5700 square feet of floor space, or a total of 17100 square feet besides the third floor.

The basement is used for general storage purposes. The first floor contains well-stocked departments for dry goods, notions, coats and suits, groceries, queensware, glassware, tinware, agate ware, jardinieres, china ware, cut glass, fancy goods, etc., and a very large department for shoes. The lines handled in ladies' wear are the Radcliff and Patrician in fine goods, and the Bay State in a cheaper grade. In men's wear are the Bostonian, and Keith's Konqueror in fine grade, and the Bay State for less money. Other lines are handled also. This department contains a stock that would make a large shoe store by itself. Rubbers, gum boots and felt boots are also kept in great variety.

At the rear of the store room is a Warner elevator with a capacity of 1200 pounds.

On the second floor the furniture department occupies a space of 50 by 60 feet. Here are to be found bed room suits, side-boards, chairs, rockers, couches, iron bed-steads, combination book-cases, &c. Oil cloth and carpet chain also have a space on this floor.

The old shoe department is now occupied by blankets, curtains, pillows, window shades, mattresses, bed-spring etc.

Eleven clerks are employed in the several departments, besides the proprietor, cashier, book-keeper, cellar man and delivery man, making sixteen people in all. Extra help is employed during the holidays, or whenever the trade demands it.

Besides the improvements named, others are contemplated, and it will probably not be many years before a new front will be put in the store, and the main building raised another story with a square roof.

These improvements have made Market Square one of the prettiest to be found in the State, and Mr. Pursel's enterprise should be rewarded by a continuance of the very liberal patronage heretofore extended, and which has encouraged him to go to great expense in order to meet the demands of his large and growing business.

Through the efforts of Rev. D. N. Kirkby there have been collected the portraits of nine former rectors of St. Paul's P. E. Church. They are the Revs. May, Marple, Rudderow, Weilly, Russell, Cullen, Hewitt, Zahner and Leverett; and Bartlett, an assistant in 1872. These have been neatly framed and hung in the sacristy of the church. An effort is being made to secure portraits of all the Bishops under whose jurisdiction this parish has been since 1793. They are Bishops White, Onderdonk, Potter, Bowman, Stephens, Howe, Rulison, and the present Bishop Talbot. Portraits of Bishops Potter and Rulison have been procured. The former was presented to the parish recently by Rev. J. McAlpin Harding, the clergyman who for many years was the missionary in charge of St. Gabriel's, at Cole's Creek. A photograph of Bishop Stephens is now being enlarged and will soon be added to the collection.

A setter dog belonging to I. G. Quick was caught beneath the wheels of a trolley car late Sunday night and killed. This is the first fatal accident recorded.

VIOLATED HEAVEN'S COMMAND.

Peter R. Baldy Takes His Own Life.

By the self inflicted death of Peter R. Baldy, Catawissa has lost a resident who in earlier life was one of its most potent business factors. The announcement of his suicide was a terrible shock to the people of our neighboring town, and many were loath to place any credence in the report until they viewed the body with their own eyes.

He had gone to the back porch, fastened a rope to a bird cage hook, then about his neck, and to make sure work of it had raised his feet from the floor. He was discovered in this position by a Mrs. Rhawn, who had stopped to make a call. She quickly spread the alarm. Charles E. Randall and Fred Hartman, nearby neighbors were the first to reach the scene. They cut the body down and worked with it for some time in the hope of starting respiration, but it was too late.

Mr. Baldy had taken advantage of his wife's absence. She had gone out a short time previous to spend an hour or so with the family of her pastor Rev. U. Meyers, and was greatly affected when informed of her husband's rash act.

Mr. Baldy was well advanced in years and in a few months would have reached the allotted three score and ten. He was a first class business man and possessed of excellent judgment. Why he took his life is beyond the ken of his relatives and friends. His mind must have been affected. No person with all his faculties will run away from this world's ills, that at the very worst, and particularly in this case, will soon blow over, thinking to mend ourselves by boldly venturing on a world unknown, and plunging headlong in the dark. It's madness. There is no other frenzy half so desperate.

Previous to committing the deed he had written three letters, one to each of his sons Frank and Stephen and one to W. H. Rhawn. Their contents have not been made public.

Beside the two sons above named, a wife and one daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Derr, survive. Mrs. Matilda Hughes of this town is a sister.

PRESIDENT SHOT.

McKinley Twice Wounded by an Anarchist.

ASSAILANT ARRESTED.

Exposition Hall at Buffalo Scene of the Shooting.

CHANCE OF RECOVERY HOPEFUL.

President McKinley Had Just Returned From Niagara Falls and Was Holding a Reception In Temple of Music When the Attempt on His Life Was Made.

BUFFALO, Sept. 7.—President McKinley, while holding a reception in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American exposition at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, was shot and twice wounded by Leon Czolgosz, an anarchist, who lives in Cleveland.

One bullet entered the president's breast, struck the breast bone, glanced and was later easily extracted. The other bullet entered the abdomen, penetrated the stomach and has not been found, although the wounds have been closed.

Leon Czolgosz, the assassin, has signed a confession, covering six pages of foolscap, in which he states that he is an anarchist and that he became an enthusiastic member of that body through the influence of Emma Goldman, whose writings he had read and whose lectures he had listened to. He denies having any confederate and says he decided on the act three days ago and bought the revolver with which the act was committed in Buffalo.

He has seven brothers and sisters in Cleveland, and the Cleveland directory has the names of about that number living in Hosmer street and Ackland avenue, which adjoin. Some of them are butchers and others are in other trades.

It was just after the daily organ recitals in the splendid Temple of Music that the dastardly attempt was made. Planned with all the diabolical ingenuity and finesse of which anarchy or nihilism is capable, the would be assassin carried out the work without a hitch, and should his designs fail and the president survive only to Divine Providence can be attributed that beneficent result.

The president, though well guarded by United States secret service detectives, was fully exposed to such an attack as occurred. He stood at the edge of the raised dais upon which stands the great pipe organ at the east side of the magnificent structure. Throngs of people crowded in at the various entrances to gaze upon their well beloved executive, perchance to clasp his hand, and then fight their way out in the good natured mob that every minute swelled and multiplied at the points of ingress and egress to the building. The president was in a cheerful mood and was enjoying to the full the hearty evidences of good will which everywhere met his gaze. Upon his right stood John G. Milburn of Buffalo, president of the Pan-American exposition, chatting with the president and introducing to him especially persons of note who approached. Upon the president's left stood Mr. Cortelyou.

It was shortly after 4 p. m. when one of the throng which surrounded the presidential party, a medium sized man of ordinary appearance and plainly dressed in black, approached as if to greet the president.

Both Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn noticed that the man's hand was swathed in a bandage or handkerchief. Reports of bystanders differ as to which hand. He worked his way amid the stream of people up to the edge of the dais until he was within two feet of the president.

President McKinley smiled, bowed and extended his hand in that spirit of geniality the American people so well know, when suddenly two sharp cracks of a revolver rang out loud and clear above the hum of voices, the shuffling of myriad feet and vibrating waves of applause that ever and anon swept here and there over the assemblage. Then came the silence that ensues after the discharge of a bombshell. The president stood stock still, a look of hesitancy, almost of bewilderment, on his face. Then he retreated a step, while a pallor began to steal over his features. The multitude, only partially aware that something serious had happened, paused in the silence of surprise, while necks were craned and all eyes turned as one toward the rostrum where a great tragedy was being enacted.

Then came a commotion. With the leap of a tiger three men threw themselves forward as with one impulse and sprang toward the would be assassin. Two of them were United States secret service men who were on the lookout and whose duty it was to guard against just such a calamity as had here befallen the president and the nation. The third was a bystander, a negro, who had only an instant previously grasped in his dusky palm the hand of the president.

As one man the trio hurled themselves upon the president's assailant. In a twinkling he was borne to the ground, his weapon was wrested from his grasp, and strong arms pinioned him down.

Then the vast multitude which thronged the edifice began to come to a realizing sense of the awfulness of the scene of which they had been unwilling witnesses.

A murmur arose, spread and swelled to a hum of confusion, then grew to a babel of sounds and later to a pandemonium of noises.

The crowds that a moment before had stood mute and motionless in bewildered ignorance of the enormity of the thing now with a single impulse surged forward toward the stage of the horrid drama, while a hoarse cry welled up from a thousand throats and a thousand men charged forward to lay hands upon the perpetrator of the dastardly crime.

For a moment the confusion was terrible. The crowd surged forward regardless of consequences. Men shouted and fought, women screamed, and children cried. Some of those nearest the door fled from the edifice in fear of a stampede, while hundreds of others from the outside struggled blindly forward in the effort to penetrate the crowded building and solve the mystery of excitement and panic, which every moment grew and swelled within the congested interior of the palatial edifice.

Inside on the slightly raised dais was enacted within those few feverish moments a tragedy so dramatic in character, so thrilling in its intensity, that few who looked on will ever be able to give a succinct account of what really did transpire. Even the actors who were playing the principal roles came out of it with blanched faces, trembling limbs and beating hearts, while their brains throbbed with a tumult of conflicting emotions which left behind only a chaotic jumble of impressions which could not be clarified into a lucid narrative of the events as they really transpired.

But of the multitude which witnessed or bore a part in the scene of turmoil and turbulence there was but one mind which seemed to retain its equilibrium, one hand which remained steady, one eye which gazed with unflinching calmness and one voice which retained its even tenor and faltered not at the most critical juncture.

They were the mind and the hand and the eye and the voice of President McKinley.

After the first shock of the assassin's shots he retreated a step. Then as the detectives leaped upon his assailant he turned, walked steadily to a chair and seated himself, at the same time removing his hat and bowing his head in his hands.

In an instant Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn were at his side. His waistcoat was hurriedly opened, the president meanwhile admonishing those about him to remain calm and telling them not to be alarmed.

"But you are wounded!" cried his secretary. "Let me examine!"

"No, I think not," answered the president. "I am not badly hurt, I assure you."

Nevertheless his outer garments were hastily loosened, and when a trickling stream of crimson was seen to wind its way down his breast, spreading its telltale stain over the white surface of the linen, their worst fears were confirmed.

A force of exposition guards were on the scene by this time, and an effort was made to clear the building. By this time the crush was terrific. Spectators crowded down the stairways from the galleries, the crowd on the floor surged forward toward the rostrum, while, despite the strenuous efforts of police and guards, the throng without struggled madly to obtain admission.

The president was removed at once to the Emergency hospital, where an operation was performed, and at 7:25 he was taken from the exposition hospital to the home of President Milburn on Delaware avenue.

The interest in the president's condition was such across the Canadian border that the press was asked to furnish a bulletin to be read in the churches in Quebec and Montreal, and many requests of a similar character came direct to Secretary Cortelyou from different parts of the United States. The messages of sympathy from all over the United States—and all over the world, in fact—have fairly overwhelmed Secretary Cortelyou. Two more White House stenographers have been sent for, and upon their arrival some of the more impotant messages will be made public. Almost every government in the world has been heard from, most of the crowned heads of Europe sending personal messages. Among the latter are King Edward VII., Emperor William, the kings of Portugal, Italy and Sweden and the sultan of Turkey. President Loubet of the republic of France has also cabled his sympathy direct. One of the most touching messages thus far received was from Mme. Labori, the wife of Maitre Labori, who defended Dreyfus in his famous trial at Rennes.

GOLDMAN ARRESTED

Female Anarchist Found Hiding In Chicago.

DENIES COMPLICITY WITH CZOLGOSZ

But Admits Having Met the President's Assailant In July—An Interview For Publication.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Emma Goldman, the anarchist, has been arrested in this city. She had been sought by the police ever since the man who shot President McKinley declared that her anarchistic writings had led him to make the attempt on the president's life.

The woman was arrested by Captain Schuttler of the Lake View police station. She was in hiding in a house at 300 Sheffield avenue. She was taken immediately to the Central police station and questioned by Mayor Harrison, Chief O'Neill and newspaper men. She admitted having met Czolgosz, but said she had not seen him since July 12, when he was in Chicago.

Later in the day Miss Goldman was interviewed in the woman's annex at the police station by a reporter and a stenographic report taken. Miss Goldman said:

"I feel sure that the police are helping us more than I could do in ten years. They are making more anarchists than the most prominent people connected with the anarchist cause could make in ten years. If they will only continue, I shall be very grateful. They will save me lots of work."

Asked if she had been on the downtown streets before her arrest, she answered:

"Certainly I have. I have been shopping—went to Fields'; have been in restaurants; in fact, I passed the city hall several times.

"The police knew positively that I was coming," she continued, "because I wrote on Friday from St. Louis both to Mr. Havel and to Mr. Norris that I would come Sunday if I got through with my business on Saturday, and if so I would telegraph them the hour of my arrival. I also said that if I did not come on Sunday I would surely come on Monday or Tuesday. These letters they must have seen at 515 Carroll avenue."

"What do you think of your own arrest?" she was asked.

"If I told you," she replied, "it would look somewhat conceited, and I certainly would not like to be guilty of that. Not only my arrest, but the others, smack of the Haymarket. The police are very much in disrepute all over the country, and they wish to do something to clear themselves. They are trying to make it an anarchist plot. If they wish to make up a case, they may succeed."

Referring to the attempt on the life of the president, Miss Goldman said:

"It is a dirty trick to charge in the newspaper reports that it was the result of an anarchist plot. Mark Hanna has been the ruler of this country, not McKinley. McKinley has been the most insignificant ruler that this country has ever had. He has neither wit nor intelligence, but has been a tool in the hands of Mark Hanna. Other presidents have had a heart or something, but this poor fellow—God forgive him, since he knows nothing!—is a tool in the hands of the wealthy, and it seems very remarkable for Mark Hanna to say that he was notified of a plot for his assassination. I think McKinley too insignificant for such a thing."

"What man in the United States, in your opinion, is of sufficient prominence to warrant such a plot?" she was asked.

"I am not in position to say," replied Miss Goldman, "who ought to be killed. The monopolists and the wealthy of this country are responsible for the existence of a Czolgosz. If imperialism would not grow in this country, if the liberties of the people were not trampled under foot, there would have been no violence."

Referring to the would be assassin, Miss Goldman said:

"I feel that the man is one of those unfortunates who has been driven by despair and misery to commit the deed. I feel very deeply with him as an individual, as I would feel with anybody who suffers. If I had means, I would help him as much as I could. I would see that he had counsel and that justice was done him."

Asked if she thought Czolgosz's act was praiseworthy from her viewpoint, she answered: "I am not in a position to say whether it was good or bad. It is bad for the man who attempted to do. I am not in his boots and know nothing about it. What I don't see is why they should make more fuss over the president than anybody else. All men are born equal."

"But some men rise above the equality of birth," a reporter suggested. "We are all interested in the man whom we have made our chief."

"I don't think men put him in office. I think money put him in office," remarked Miss Goldman. In reference to Czolgosz's alleged statement that he was inspired by a lecture of Miss Goldman's in Cleveland the prisoner said: "As I have repeatedly said, it is foolish to think that this man would claim that he did that deed alone and unaided and at the same time claim that I inspired him. If he had accomplices and still claims that he was acting alone, do you think he would have singled me out as the only friend he would not protect by assuming entire responsibility? He might have heard me in Cleveland, for I lectured there twice May 6 last.

His One Act of Wisdom.

"That young Jollikings seems to be about the biggest fool I ever saw. All he does is go gallivanting around, spending money like water and letting the girls who want to have a good time making a monkey of him. What good does such a fellow do the world?"

The Mad Dog Scare.

There was a mad dog scare in New York the other day which was a direct result of the dog-days. They did not affect the dog; it was the people of the metropolis who seemed to be bothered.

The dog was quietly trotting along Amsterdam Avenue, minding his own business and allowing other people to mind theirs, when some boys spied him and began throwing tin cans and stones at him. Naturally, he ran. Naturally, they chased him, and as it was a hot day and the dog did not see the necessity of this sort of thing, he began to lose his temper and snapped at one or two people whom he passed. The door of a vaudeville theatre was open, and the hunted animal dodged in and ran down the aisle, yelping out his predicament in dog language; but no body there had studied that tongue and the result of his advent was a panic. Women grabbed their children and sprang upon the seats, as if the canine intruder had been a mouse; the soubrette on the stage stopped singing and screamed. When she saw the dog coming toward her, she made an exit not provided for in the program, and the tired beast made for a corner of the hall which looked quiet, and lay down, panting.

A policeman was on hand by that time, and he came up, with a chair held between him and the dog, shot the animal, and removed the deceased. Then the show went on.

This is a fairly good example of the manufacture of a mad dog scare. Of course, there is such a thing, now and then, as a case of hydrophobia, but some cases which are taken for that are nothing but common, ordinary madness, in the Yankee sense of the word—madness which is the result of temper and nerves, not of organic disease of any kind. It would save time and trouble to recognize the distinction and impress upon the public that a dog has nerves, just like anybody else, and if he is teased and tormented in hot weather, he is likely to become nervous, irritable and cross. In that case, he does not need to be chased up the street by a mob with sticks and stones nearly as much as he needs to be let alone and kindly treated. The former treatment will produce a very good imitation, entirely unnecessary, of real hydrophobia.

Band Trees With Cotton.

Agricultural Department Tells How to Get Rid of Caterpillars.

The United States department of agriculture announces that the caterpillar which is doing so much damage to maple, linden and other trees is the product of the tussock moth, so called from the three tussocks or tufts of hair so prominent on the caterpillar. The fact that the female moth is without wings tends to simplify somewhat the method of prevention, especially to those trees not yet affected.

A broad, thick strip of raw cotton tied around the trunk and renewed occasionally will prove effective. Such banding will be useful also in cases where the trees have already been attacked, as many caterpillars drop from the trees, and the cotton prevents their return. Such eggs as are deposited on the trees are usually low down on the trunk, and can easily be removed by scraping. In view of this nuisance at the present time it behooves individual owners of trees to take prompt steps to abate the evil for the present, and prevent it for the future.

L. O. Howard, United States entomologist, will furnish copies of Farmers Bulletin, No. 99, with interesting illustration and descriptions of the moth and caterpillar.

Canned Peaches.

Pare and halve your peaches and cover with cold water. When ready to can, weigh the fruit and allow one-third weight in sugar, or for each jar allow one cup of sugar and two cups of water; the water in which the peaches have been soaked can be strained and used. Cook just enough of the fruit to fill two jars at a time; as soon as they can be pierced with a "splint" and are not "gritty" put them into the jars and seal.

Rice and Corn.

With potatoes soaring skyward toward the two dollar-a sack mark, says an exchange, the proper classes with whom the nutriticus tubers are a staple article of diet, are confronted with the necessity for finding substitutes for them. Not only has the potato suddenly become a luxury, but other vegetables, particularly beans and cabbage, are now beyond the purses of the poor.

Whether the exceptional rise in the prices of vegetables is due to a shortage in the supply or to the cold storage men in the West who have bought up the supply or not is a question that the wage earner has no time to consider. He is confronted by a condition. It is a good time for him to pay attention to the food experts and dietetic chemists who have been telling him all along that there is more real nutrition in rice and corn than there is in potatoes. In fact, there appears to be nothing outside of a stringency in the vegetable supply that will direct the attention of the poorer classes to the wonderful nutritive properties of our own Indian maize.

Boiled rice and boiled potatoes are similar in their ingredients, possessing about the same percentages of starch, albuminous matter, and water. With rice at 10 cents a pound there is no reason why the poor should suffer for nutritious food.

The dietetic chemists and food analysists show even a more marked advantage for Indian corn. Corn contains more phosphates and postein, for muscle and brain, than potatoes. Moreover, the palatable dishes that may be prepared from it far exceed the number of dishes that may be prepared from potatoes. With corn at 65 cents a bushel sack the food possibilities for the poor in this king of American native products are almost incalculable.

It would be a blessing to wage-earning humanity if circumstances would conspire to take it off a potato diet for a while and acquaint it with the muscle-making and brain-building elements of rice and corn. With these cereals within their reach a vegetable famine should have no terrors for the poor.

September Weather.

Hicks the Weather Prophet Tells us What to Look for This Month.

Rev. Ira Hicks, who has been very successful as a weather prognosticator, has announced the following as his predictions for the month of September August's concluding storm period will extend into September. Reactionary disturbance will show themselves about the 5th. Another storm period is central on the 8th, and much violence in the elements is due from the 9th to the 13th. The magnetic and electrical forces usually dormant in other globe and atmosphere will reach a maximum state of unrest about the 11th. This will likely be accompanied by auroral displays disturbing telegraphy and illuminating the northern sky. Then follows another reactionary period central on the 16th or 17th changes to warmer weather and much rain. The storm period central on the 22nd is coincidental which the centre of the earth's equinox. A touch of frost, snow and early winter will close the month in the northern regions.

Counterfeit Quarter.

Another counterfeit quarter is going the rounds and there seems to be a great many of them. So cleverly is the piece made that even when one is told of it he must compare it with another and good quarter to see the difference. The spurious piece bears the date of 1900 and is one of the best copies of the genuine ever put in circulation. It weighs almost a grain more than the good coin and contains more silver. Among the distinguishing marks to be found are the following: The E in the word "We" on the face side is prominent, whereas on the good coin the letter looks more like an F. On the "tail" side the eagle's head is defective—not curved properly. The beak is pointed and the head is smaller than on the genuine. The shield is larger than that of the genuine coin. The eagle's wings are thinner and point upward more than the original. The eagle's legs look more like a turkey's legs. The eagle is defective all through, and the work on the entire coin is inferior to that on the genuine. The spurious coin is both thinner and of less diameter than the genuine.

Copper Found Near Tivoli.

Along Muncy Creek near Tivoli, where Smith, Conrad & Burrows, of Philadelphia, recently leased land, a rich vein of copper ore three or four feet in thickness has been found, being struck in a tunnel driven into the hillside at twenty-five feet depth. The tunnel will be driven into the hill one hundred feet and a shaft sunk to test the depth of the vein. The copper which is on the land of John Fox, is said to assay 67 per cent pure copper, and to be a better discovery than the one recently made at Beaver Dam.

A MILTON TRAGEDY.

Skull Crushed With a Spade—Blow Struck in Self Defense.

The electric light plant, at Milton, was the scene of a tragedy Sunday evening, about half-past 8 o'clock, in which Ambrose McFarland, aged nearly thirty-five years and generally respected, was killed. Death was the result of a blow struck by Daniel Notestine, fireman at the plant, and a spade was the weapon. Only meagre details of the shocking affair have been learned, but it appears at the time above stated McFarland entered the electric light plant, and walking up to Notestine, who was engaged about the fire, drew a revolver from his pocket, accompanying the move with the remark:

"Now I intend to shoot you!"

McFarland, it is said, had previously threatened the life of the fireman, who, believing that the former was about to carry his threat into execution, raised his shovel, and with the blade struck McFarland over the head, crushing his skull. The latter dropped, dying in a few minutes. The only eye witness of the tragedy was a grandson of the fireman.

Notestine has surrendered himself. He is a man of about 60 years of age and is much respected and in this affair has the sympathy of the community.

The case is a very strange one, because of the absence of any apparent motive.

Union Co.'s Coming Fair at Lewisburg.

The 48th Annual Fair and exhibition of the Union County Agricultural Society will be held at Brook Park, Lewisburg, Pa., on September 24, 25, 26 and 27, 1901.

This organization, nearly half a century old, is one of the standard agricultural societies in the Keystone Commonwealth. It has a reputation far and wide for the excellence of its annual exhibitions and the high character of its attractions, attested to by the large crowds that assemble each year on its spacious and well equipped grounds just beyond the western suburbs of Lewisburg.

The society has an excellent track, with a record of 2:08¼. The grand stand is so located that all portions of the track may seen.

Full particulars are given in the annual books, just published by the society. Send a postal to C. Dale Wolfe, Cor. Sec., Bucknell P. O., Pa.

Brooms Will Cost More.

A dispatch from Reading says: "The new broom that sweeps clean will soon cost housewives more money. Local manufacturers have advanced wholesale figures, and the retail price is going up anywhere from twenty-five to fifty cents a dozen, with promise of another jump shortly. A few months ago first class broom corn could be purchased for $63 per ton. It has gone up to $130 to $145 a ton, with indications of a still further rise. Manufacturers declare the crop this year is practically ruined."

Saphedde (as the clock strikes midnight)—"What I admire in a man is his staying qualities." Miss Caustique (yawning)—"How conceited of you!"

MRS. FRANK CARTER,
3 Merrill Street, Amesbury, Mass.

This letter should carry Faith and Conviction to the Hearts of all Sick Women.

"I suffered with inflammation and falling of the womb and other disagreeable female weaknesses. I had bad spells every two weeks that would last from eight to ten days and would have to go to bed. I also had headache and backache most of the time and such bearing down pains I could hardly walk across the room at times. I doctored nearly all the time for about two years and seemed to grow worse all the time until last September I was obliged to take my bed, and the doctors thought an operation was the only thing that would help me, but this I refused to have done.

"Then a friend advised me to try the Pinkham medicine, which I did, and after using the first bottle I began to improve. I took in all five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier, four boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Dry Form Compound, three boxes of Liver Pills and used three packages of Sanative Wash, and I am as well now as I ever was. I am more than thankful every day for my cure."—MRS. FRANK CARTER, 3 Merrill St., Amesbury, Mass.

$5000 will be paid if this testimonial is not genuine.

Oil for the Children.

Give them oil—cod-liver oil. It's curious to see the result.

Give it to the peevish, fretful child, and he laughs. Give it to the pale, anæmic child, and his face becomes rosy and full of health. Take a flat-chested child, or a child that has stopped growing, give him the oil, and he will grow big and strong like the rest.

This is not a new scheme. It has been done for years. Of course you must use the right oil. Scott's Emulsion is the one.

Scott's Emulsion neither looks nor tastes like oil because we are so careful in making it pleasant to take.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1901.

Hon. Wm. T. Creasy, of Columbia county, has signified his intention to attend the second day of the Wyoming County Fair, September 19, and deliver an address. He is known as "farmer Creasy" throughout the length and breadth of the State, and is a member of the legislature from Columbia county—and an honest man, "the noblest work of God."—Wyoming Democrat.

Even money is being wagered on the outcome of the yacht race. There don't appear to be any advantage, unless it is in the way of construction. A great many people contend that it would be an impossibtlity to improve on the Columbia, while others seem to think that the Shamrock is a model in yacht building. The doubts will all be dissolved and differences of opinion settled in the coming race. But whichever boat wins the contest is expected to be the best in the history of the sport.

The doctrine of free speech is one of the fundamental principles of American liberty. Every man has a right to his own opinions, and a right to express them publicly so long as he keeps within the law. But no man has a right to speak in public when his teachings are subversive of good government, or lead to riot or violence, or violation of the laws of the land. This country should have no time for anarchists, and it is now up to Congress to pass laws that will suppress them, and drive them and their pernicious teachings from our shores.

In the returns of the September grand jury to the Judges of the Luzerne County Courts, the jury recommends the immediate building of the new county Court House. The Commissioners are also directed to pay the $15,000 debt on Memorial Hall, the home erected by the citizens for the Grand Army.

In every church in town prayers were offered on Sunday for the recovery of President McKinley. In the Episcopal church the following prayer was read:

O Father of mercies and God of all comfort, our only help in time of need; Look down from heaven, we humbly beseech thee, behold, visit, and relieve thy sick servant, the President of the United States, for whom our prayers are desired. Look upon him with the eyes of thy mercy; comfort him with a sense of thy goodness; preserve him from the temptations of the enemy; give him patience under his affliction; and, in thy good time, restore him to health, and enable him to lead the residue of his life in thy fear, and to thy glory. Or else give him grace so to take thy visitation, that, after this painful life ended, he may dwell with thee in life everlasting; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Rev. D. N. Kirkby preached an appropriate sermon, at the close of which the congregation sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee." Special services for the occasion were conducted in all the churches. And so all over this great land the prayers of the people went up to Almighty God, beseeching him to spare the life of the executive head of the nation. The dastardly assault on the President has cemented the American people more closely together than ever before, and the dastardly and cowardly act has been denounced universally as one of the greatest outrages ever perpetrated in a civilized country. The villain who can walk calmly up to another, be he President or be he an humble citizen, and with malice in his heart deliberately shoot with intent to kill, while being greeted with an outstretched hand and a pleasant smile, is not fit to live. It is high time that congress shall take some action that will drive Anarchists out of the country, and that will adequately punish them for offenses against society. An assault on the President should be made high treason and be punishable with death, even though the President is uninjured. Not because his life is worth more to him than is that of the humblest citizen, but because he is the head of the nation, and a blow aimed at him with intent to kill is a blow at the whole country. It would have been a source of much satisfaction to a very large majority if the assassin had been torn to pieces on the spot, and while Lynch law is not to be commended, it is regretable that the Corporal who had the wretch by the throat with both hands, was not permitted to pinch just a little longer.

A break in the feed wire of the electric railway about ten o'clock Saturday night compelled a great many people who were attending the church festival at Almedia to walk home. The road between here and Espy was literally strewn with pedestrians who were anxious to reach their home before midnight. It was doubly unfortunate occurring as it did at night, and the time occupied to make the repairs was lengthened, because the Company was not prepared. The Company will be fully equipped to meet any such contingency in the future.

"The umpire cheated us" was Berwick's burden of lament Saturday evening. The team had been beaten by the Danville "Old Timers" in the afternoon. Lewis and Coffman of town played, the former with Danville and the latter with Berwick. The defeat, because of the inferiority of the Danville team, compared with that of Berwick is very grievous to the upriver fans. We have had experience with Danville umpires, and don't doubt but what he was rank, but Berwick should have won notwithstanding this fact.

THE BLACK CAT'S WARNING

By Spencer Boyd.

(Copyright, 1901, by Authors Syndicate.)

A MAN and a woman stood upon the broad piazza apparently in the act of parting. A cat, black as midnight, perched upon the girl's shoulder and formed a pleasing contrast to her white dress, and set off to advantage her blond loveliness.

Flora, in defense of her pet, was wont to declare that it possessed a soul that had once inhabited the body of one of the Magi, or even that of Zoroaster himself. "For, said she, "he literally worships a fire, adores all the sunny places, and his powers of divination are wonderful."

Mr. Lyndon did not share her admiration of the animal—it seemed to regard him with a peculiar malevolence.

Just before leaving, she asked his assistance in closing a number of windows, which had been left open on account of the warm evening.

The situation of the house was somewhat remote, sheltered from the street by extensive grounds and intercepting shrubbery, and to one unfamiliar with the place, might have appeared lonely.

This tendency was ordinarily restricted through reason of the immediate family consisting of some five or six persons, but for various reasons, as Flora explained, almost every member had been called away from the city, and now there was only her brother at home, though her father was expected on a train that arrived about midnight.

Mr. Lyndon listened to this explanation with great apparent interest. It was surprising, indeed, with what gravity and attention he hung upon her words, or, rather, it was natural and flattering. Not the least pleasing element in his consideration was that his regard seemed more deeply enlisted as the evening wore to a close—a striking tribute to the girl's fascinations.

He performed the task of closing the windows with great care, which may have accounted for the time it occupied, or perhaps he was deliberate rather than careful, so as to extend his visit and engage to the furthest limit a social intercourse so charming.

Indeed it must have been the latter reason, for one of the windows was left unfastened, though the negligence was not apparently detected.

It was now near 11 o'clock, and all having been arranged, Mr. Lyndon took his departure.

Flora passed into the house, and as she did so, a certain uneasiness possessed her—an occult prophecy of evil which she vainly tried to banish. As is usual with these impressions the cause was direct, and, in this case, even immediate; but failing to appreciate the logic of the situation the girl felt tormented and mystified. She proceeded to her room more agitated than she would admit, and especially oppressed by the ghostly silence of the spacious house.

A bat careered through the hall, creating intense alarm with its silent ghost-like rushes.

The silence and the sound were equally terrifying and intollerable. She determined to knock on her brother's door, that, even though ridiculed, her fears might be allayed. There was no light within, but she persisted in her summons, first with a timid appeal, then with peremptory vehemence.

No answer was elicited and finally she opened the door. The bed was unoccupied, and the girl realized that she was alone in the house.

She then very cautiously deposited upon the bureau a package, the contents of which had quite recently occupied Mr. Lyndon's attention as well as her own.

She felt now that she had been a little indiscreet, for Mr. Lyndon was a comparative stranger, yet the desire for display had overcome her scruples and her judgment, and she felt, with some regret, that she had allowed to go unchallenged a laughing estimate of the casket's value—one very largely in excess of the truth. The casket contained some score of diamonds.

Mr. Lyndon, in the meantime, pursued his way towards the center of the city. Happening into a saloon which was frequented by college boys, he saw, with half a dozen comrades, the brother whom Flora thought safe within his own room. While lounging near the group he inadvertently heard that the party were about to adjourn to certain private rooms where the great American game would occupy their attention for some hours.

This, of course, was but slightly interesting to Mr. Lyndon, so he proceeded on his way, after discovering that the train which Flora expected at twelve was some hours late.

He stood and studied the time table with earnest attention, seemingly engrossed to the exclusion of all other duties and diversions.

Flora determined to remain dressed until her father should arrive. She was a girl of more than ordinary courage, and, though at first the loneliness oppressed her, she felt reasonably secure. She settled into an easy chair and began reading.

This was an excellent idea, she thought, and well designed to protect her from any feeling of nervousness.

After reading for some time she, merely out of curiosity, raised her eyes to look at the clock. To her surprise it had stopped, yet—no, she distinctly heard it ticking.

It was ten minutes after 11 when she began reading and now it was three minutes later. She had read for at least half an hour—of course she had—and it must have been that the clock had stopped and then resumed its work. In the morning she would have the clock repaired.

Four times she read for similar half hours, and four times the clock stopped. Therefore it must have been after one, though the clock indicated less than a quarter of an hour for her entire literary recreation.

She rose to her feet, wondering why her father did not come. Feeling oppressed, she opened a window and gazed inquiringly into the unanswering night.

The cat purred contentedly on the arm of her chair.

For some reason she did not continue her study of tactics—she had been reading the "Manual of Arms," left through her brother's error.

She now determined to retire, feeling perfectly quiet after her first nervousness. It was really absurd that she should have felt agitated at all. How different everything would appear in the morning—the sunshine's tranquil gold dreaming upon the floor—the melody of the birds whose notes fell in liquid showers amid the showers of dew. She would listen, too, for the woodpecker with its crimson head of fire burning behind its driving bill, like the glare of the explosion that gives the projectile its furious energy.

She would know the exact time to arise by noting through the transom when a golden lance of sunshine ripped the palpitating shadow in the hall.

As she lay meditating, with her hand upon the soft fur of her pet, she felt soothed and lulled by its soft purring.

Suddenly the sound ceased. The cat rose with arched back and glaring eyes.

Glancing up, she saw outlined against the transom a human head. Death was hers for the asking, and less!

She looked upon the floor and in a moment it was peopled with shadowy faces, and she felt the carpet torn by champing teeth.

The paralysis of her terror was also her safety. She made no sound that would direct the attention of the head from the diamonds to herself.

Terror had wrapped her so close in his weaving that she could not wound herself against the thorns of danger.

Slowly the girl realized her situation. The first signal was like a stunning blow; then she came to the realized anguish, the nerves working into tormented surprise, the chaos of misery, excitement and fear.

She wondered what would be the outcome. Death, indeed, but under what circumstances?

Remote from human aid—choked with strong hands about her throat—that grinning sepulcher of a head against her face, while the congested veins blackened. Oh, the horror of such a death! And worse than all physical pain, the nameless agony of fear.

Was there no help? Could that desperate intruder terminate the whole design and mystery of her existence?

Doubt and agony and groping hope lay upon her heart.

How long she lay in that condition she could not tell.

The great house seemed buried in night and silence. The world had fallen away in its circuit, and this fragment whereon the house was builded lay lost in space. She felt that the fathomless ocean held no more imperious or sterner solitude.

After these maddening moments that deride the longevity of the centuries, she suddenly thought of an escape.

She rose slowly. It were easier to step barefoot on burning plowshares, yet the girl did not falter. She reached the bureau where the diamonds lay, drew them with trembling fingers from their case and stood absently fingering the blazing jewels as though loath to leave their sparkling company; then, without replacing any of the stones, she left them in scattered confusion and walked slowly to the other end of the room.

Those blazing crystals might well hold the attention of that terrifying head for the moment at least.

Then, summoning all her resolution, she rushed to the door and with furious haste pressed the spring that closed the heavy transom.

As it closed with crushing force upon the clinging fingers an unearthly cry rang out upon the stillness of the night, and the black cat sprang through the open window into the impenetrable gloom.

Some hours later Flora's father and brother returned. Their return was not coincident through design, but the result of an accident which was eliciting an earnest but incoherent narrative from the younger man and an appearance of dark disapproval from the elder. Their conversation was abruptly terminated as they entered the house by moans and curses. The two men sprang up the stairs in mad haste, and a moment later stood before Flora's door.

Hanging suspended from it, his bloody fingers a mangled, monstrous mass of bruised flesh, was Lyndon.

Calmly regarding him with malignant eyes lay the black cat, while upon its ebon fur the blood from the wounded hands fell in long, spattering drops.

Flora lay within, huddled into a scarce recognized shape of chattering fear, excitement and tears.

The cause of the tragedy—the diamonds—by that common law of perverse fate, were the only actors in the play that showed no sign of the experience.

A MODERN APOSTLE.

Richard Janasch, a German Enthusiast, Leads a Strange Nomadic Religious Life.

Richard Janasch, the modern apostle, is the latest phenomenon in the religious world which at the beginning of the twentieth century boasts of an endless variety of factions, sects and theories. Richard Janasch is at present tramping through Bohemia, where, during his peregrinations in the cities and villages, he is followed by vast throngs, many of whom believe in him. Here is the doctrine of Richard Janasch in a nutshell:

"Provide neither gold nor silver nor brass in your purses; nor script for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves. Eat no meat and drink no strong drink. Abide in the dwellings provided by the rocks and other elements of nature."

In accordance with these partly Biblical and partly vegetarian rules, Richard Janasch goes about dressed in a single toga and tries in coiffure and other ways to look as much as possible like one of the ancient apostles. He has followed this nomadic life for some time now and, though he adds healing by herbs and natural means to his vocation, he has not been molested by the authorities on the continent.

Janasch is a glassblower by profession. Had he continued at his trade he would have been a physical wreck. He was advised by his doctor to seek some outdoor employment. For farming he was not strong enough, so he entered on the nomadic life in emulation of the ancient apostles of Christ. He is described by the German press as an eloquent preacher who draws great multitudes, especially from the working classes in large centers.

The Only Recreation in Which the Lesser Napoleon's Widow Indulges Is Yachting.

One of the most familiar figures in European waters in recent yachting seasons is Eugenie, the ex-empress of France. She is now cruising in the Mediterranean. Her yacht, the Thistle, was once the property of the late duke of Hamilton. To meet the requirements of her majesty the vessel was considerably enlarged. As always, Eugenie is attended by a numerous and stately retinue, for she still enjoys the traditions of a great court following, though her personal attire in these untoward days follows the simplest lines of the tailor's art. One of the best friends of this woman of former majesty is the captain of the Thistle, who, though an Englishman, invariably escorts her from the yacht to the train at the end of a cruise, and, at leave-taking, bends over and kisses her hand with a courtliness worthy of the days of Louis XIV. Though Eugenie is always treated in England with the greatest consideration, her life has been sadly embittered by the long exile from France. Her nearest friends declare that her passion for yachting has been the means of preserving her life through the trying vicissitudes that have followed her through nearly three decades. She still retains traces of the rich Spanish beauty that made her famous in Paris half a century ago, when an emperor sought her hand.

THE RENEWAL A STRAIN.—Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

AN INVOLUNTARY LESSON.

It Was Rather Shocking, But Proved to Be the Beginning of Better Things.

"The girls treated principal and teachers with an exaggerated respect that they most certainly showed to no other mortal in the world," writes Mary Louise Graham, of "My Boarding-School for Girls," in Ladies' Home Journal. "They could not grasp the idea that they could talk to me as they would to any woman of my age at their homes. I don't quite know that I ought to tell what was the opening wedge, the beginning of the new order of things. I have never regretted it in spite of the fact that it was rather shocking, and that I was lame for days afterward. We were all assembled in the schoolroom for prayers. I sat down inadvertently on an optical delusion of a chair, and as I reached the floor I exclaimed involuntarily at the top of my lungs: 'The devil!' I wish to remark parenthetically that I am not in the habit of swearing, that I think it a most unladylike custom, and I would advise my girls against it if I ever dared approach the subject. In this instance my swearing was probably a case of atavism, my grandfather being a most ungodly old specimen of a Puritan. But, to return to that morning in the schoolroom, there was a silence which lasted about two seconds; then one girl giggled. Well, it ended with two cases of hysterics, and we didn't have any prayers that morning. But the episode proved that I was human, and so it was the beginning of better things."

BRIGHT PROSPECT FOR HER.

She—But can you afford to marry?
He—Oh, yes, dear! I have a friend of mine, a clergyman, who will do it cheap.—Ally Sloper.

What a splendid type of tireless activity is the sun as the psalmist describes it issuing like "a bridegroom from his chamber and rejoicing like a strong man to run a race." Every man ought to rise in the morning refreshed by slumber and renewed by rest, eager for the struggle of the day. But how rarely this is so. Most people rise still unrefreshed, and dreading the strain of the day's labors. The cause of this is deficient vitality and behind this lies a deficient supply of pure, rich blood, and an inadequate nourishment of the body. There is nothing that will give a man strength and energy as will Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does this by increasing the quantity and quality of the blood supply. This nourishes the nerves, feeds the brain, builds up enfeebled organs, and gives that sense of strength and power which makes the struggle of life a joy. The "good feeling" which follows the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" is not due to stimulation, as it contains no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant. It does not brace up the body, but builds it up into a condition of sound health.

A winning smile isn't to be mentioned in the same breath with a winning hand.

Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart acts directly and quickly, stimulates the heart's action, stops most acute pain, dispels all signs of weakness, fluttering, sinking, smothering or palpitation. This wonderful cure is the sturdy ship which carries the heart-sick patient into the haven of radiant and perfect health. Gives relief in most acute forms of heart disease in 30 minutes.

A. N. YOST, Treas. BLOOMSBURG, PA.

THE KEYSTONE COPPER MINING CO.,

Incorporated Under the Laws of South Dakota, June 15, 1901.

Capital Stock, $1,000,000.

Divided into 200,000 Shares of Par Value of $5.00 Each.

FULL PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE.

We call special attention to the fact that one share of this Company, whose entire Capital Stock consists of only 200,000 shares of the par value of Five Dollars each, secures an interest in its property equal to 5 shares in a Company of One Million Shares of the par value of only One Dollar each, as is the case with nearly all Mining Companies offering shares at a price seemingly lower than the present price of the shares of this Company, but in reality much higher.

Property of Company.

This is very extensive, consisting of four mining properties, each over one mile in length, on a great copper vein over 100 feet in width, pronounced by Copper experts as among the widest and richest copper veins known, lacking only the necessary development to place same in the front rank of the greatest dividend and copper producing properties.

It is on the same great Copper Mineral Belt upon which are located the world's present greatest copper mines, each paying many millions of dollars annually in dividends and developed to the depth of from 1000 to 2000 feet, thus fully establishing the fact that the veins are not alone inexhaustible, but widen and become even more profitable with depth.

The great vein on this property is of such unusual width and so prolific in copper ore from surface that only moderate developments are needed to begin the production of ore on a scale to insure large dividends on the shares of this Company.

The Company is sinking a shaft now nearly 100 feet in depth on the vein of one of its four properties, the "Pay Roll." This shaft is entirely in ore, which, by tests, gave values at the surface of from 3 to 4 per cent. copper; at the depth of fifty feet tests gave values of from 8 to 10 per cent. copper; at the depth of seventy feet tests gave values of from 12 to 14 per cent in copper, while selected samples show values as high as 12 per cent. copper and nearly $15 in gold and silver per ton.

The value of the gold per ton will enable the Company to produce copper at very low cost.

As showing that this great vein is not alone of unusual width, but also of rare richness in ore as compared with some of the richest copper mines, we refer to the great "Anaconda Mine," paying over $5,000,000 annually in dividends from ore averaging less than five per cent in copper; or to the "Boston and Montana" paying over $6,000,000 annually from ore averaging less than six per cent. in copper; or to the "Great Verde," paying nearly $5,000,000 annually in dividends from ore averaging less than six per cent. in copper.

To give an approximate idea of the amount of ore and its value, that can be opened by a moderate development in only a small part of such a vein, the following estimates are given: Estimating pay ore vein at only 25 feet in width, depth of shaft, 500 feet, length of levels, 500 feet, would open up 6,250,000 cubic feet of ore, or over Five Hundred Thousand Tons.

Estimating the net Profits at Twenty Dollars per ton, would give total net profits of Ten Million Dollars, or Ten Times the Amount of the Par Value of the entire Capital Stock of the Company, and sufficient to insure dividends to amount of Ten Dollars for each share of the stock. As the length of the vein on this one property, the "Pay Roll," is over one-quarter mile in length, and the depto to which same can be worked many thousands of feet, it will be seen that as a copper investment the shares of this Company offer an unusual opportunity.

The property of the Company is situated in Rio Arriba County, in the northern part of New Mexico (only 40 miles from the southern boundary line of Colorado), convenient to Railroad Station and in a section heavily timbered and one of the healthiest in the United States.

The Company has no debts or mortgages. Its property is free and clear and its management is under able mining experience.

One-quarter of the entire Capital Stock of the Company being 50,000 Shares of the par value of $250,000 has been placed in the Treasury of this Company as a working capital, of which a limited amount is offered for sale at

$1.00 PER SHARE

Until October 1st, when the price will be advanced to $1.50 per share.

As there are only 200,000 shares in this Company it will require net earnings of only $200,000 to pay dividends at rate of $1.00 yearly upon each share. This will require only a moderate development.

Those wishing to purchase shares can make remittance, by check or otherwise, to

THE DANGER PASSED

President McKinley's Condition Continues to Improve.

PHYSICIANS EXPRESS CONFIDENCE.

Vice President and Senator Hanna Leave For Their Homes Assured That the Wounded Man Is Steadily Gaining.

BUFFALO, Sept. 11.—The corps of eminent surgeons and physicians in attendance upon the wounded president commit themselves without reservation to the opinion that their patient is out of danger and that only the possibility of complications threaten his life. They do not give assurance of his recovery collectively over their signature in an official bulletin. That is more than can be asked in reason. Scientific men, no matter how strong their convictions may be, cannot be expected to assume the grave responsibility of officially proclaiming the certainty of the recovery of a man lying on a bed of pain with a bullet hole in his stomach, but they go a long way toward it individually and separately each of them with the exception of Dr. Rixey, who has placed himself squarely on record, not privately to the friends of the president, but publicly through the agency of the press, that the danger point has passed and that the president will survive the attempt upon his life.

"Of course we will all feel easier when a week has passed," said Dr. McBurney, the dean of the corps. "We would like to see every door locked and double locked, but the danger from possible complications is now very remote."

Thousands of men are today walking the earth in perfect health with much larger chunks of lead in their bodies. The X ray machine is ready for instant use, however, and if there is the slightest inflammation or pain in the vicinity of the bullet an operation will be performed.

The vice president, members of the cabinet, Senator Hanna and the other distinguished friends of the president who have remained here to await the issue accept the verdict of the physicians as practically conclusive, and there has been an exodus of those who considered their presence no longer necessary. Vice President Roosevelt left last evening for his home at Oyster Bay, Senator Hanna returned to Cleveland on business to be gone two days, and Comptroller Dawes has gone to Washington. Abner McKinley, the president's brother, will remain a few days longer, but his family have returned home, and Mrs. Duncan and several other relatives of the president have gone. Judge Day, long and closely associated with the president, has returned to Canton. The five members of the cabinet still here will remain a few days rather as friends who have been intimately associated with the president for years than as public officials.

The president's physicians have been impressed with his remarkable recuperative powers and the rapidity of his improvement. Ordinarily an incision for such an operation as was performed upon the chief executive should heal within three weeks, but in the president's case it may be strong enough for him to be moved a little sooner. The president will be taken direct to Washington as soon as it is safe to move him.

Within the sickroom many evidences of the president's improvement are apparent. The president himself begins to show confidence in his ability to care for himself, and from time to time he will carefully turn himself and gain a more restful position. The nurses naturally observed with care these evidences of growing strength and courage and are ready to see that there is no undue tax on the president's strength or the straining of the wound. These slight movements from side to side are all that he has attempted thus far, and it is too early yet to think of his sitting up in bed or of any other marked use of his muscles.

A most important development is the private determination reached among those in charge of the case that food should be administered to the patient today by the mouth and not by the rectum. Not since the shooting has a morsel of food been given to the president by natural means, but the drain on his system has been met by dissolved foods administered by injection.

The importance of this feeding by the mouth is that it will restore the normal action of the stomach for the first time since that organ had both its walls pierced by a bullet. The doctors are satisfied that the time has come to renew these normal functions, and the five days which have elapsed since the wounds in the stomach were closed give every assurance that the sutures are sufficiently healed to allow nature to resume her sway.

Some uneasiness was caused last night because of the length of the consultation of physicians, and this was somewhat increased when it was learned that Dr. McBurney, who had intended to leave for Stockbridge, Conn., at 11:20, had missed his train and had decided to remain over until tonight, but the doctor himself did all he could to dispel the idea that the change in his plans portended anything serious. It was 11:20 when the physicians emerged from the house. They had been in consultation an hour and fifty minutes and announced to the waiting newspaper men that the president's condition was unchanged in every important particular.

As explained in the bulletin which all the doctors signed, it seems that a small fragment of the president's coat had been carried into the body by the bullet, and although this foreign substance was removed a slight disturbance developed which made necessary the opening of the wound. The doctors seek to allay all apprehension by the positive statement that this incident cannot give rise to other complications, and their frankness in giving the news to the public leaves no reason to question their entire good faith. The further fact communicated in the bulletin that the president was now well enough to begin taking nourishment in the mouth in the form of pure beef juice was of course gratifying, but to the laymen the mere mention of a complication, however slight it might be, naturally created alarm. It seemed like a little cloud on the horizon which might grow and spread. But the most positive assurances were given that the only effect might be to slightly delay the healing of the wound. The irritation was not in any way the result even of a suggestion of blood poisoning, and the physicians declared over their own signatures that it could not result in complications. The opening of the wound was in no sense an operation. Several of the stitches were simply taken out, and after a thorough antiseptic washing of the inflamed tissue the wound was again sewed up. No anæsthetics were necessary. Considerable delay was caused by the fact that a certain dressing desired by the surgeons was not in the house, and it was necessary to send into the city for it. The first time the messenger returned he did not have what was wanted, and he had to make another trip.

After the bulletin was issued Secretary Cortelyou and Mr. Milburn came to the press tent to dispel any alarm that might have arisen with positive assurances of the unimportance of the incident.

OPERATION ON PRESIDENT.

How the Wounds In the Stomach Were Sutured.

BUFFALO, Sept. 9.—The Express today says regarding the first operation performed on the president:

"The operation performed at the Emergency hospital left no need for a second operation to follow it almost immediately. The full details of the operation heretofore have not been known.

"It was performed by Dr. Matthew D. Mann. His first assistant was Dr. Herman Mynter. His second assistant was Dr. John Parmenter. His third assistant was Dr. Lee of St. Louis, who happened to be on the exposition grounds at the time and placed his services at the disposal of the president. Dr. Nelson W. Wilson noted the time of the operation and took the notes. Dr. Eugene Wasdin of the Marine hospital gave the anæsthetic. Dr. Rixey arrived at the latter part of the operation and held the light. Dr. Parke arrived at the close of the operation. It was Dr. Mann who wielded the knife.

"The operation lasted almost an hour. A cut about five inches long was made. It was found necessary to turn up the stomach of the president in order to trace the course of the bullet. The bullet's opening in the front wall of the stomach was small, and it was carefully closed with sutures, after which a search was made for the hole in the back wall of the stomach.

"This hole, where the bullet went out of the stomach, was larger than the hole in the front wall of the stomach—in fact, it was a wound over an inch in diameter, jagged and ragged. It was sewed up in three layers. This wound was larger than the wound where the bullet entered because the bullet in its course forced tissues through ahead of it.

"In turning up the stomach, an act that was absolutely necessary and was performed by Dr. Mann with rare skill, the danger was that some of the contents of the stomach might go into the abdominal cavity and as a result cause peritonitis. It so happened that there was very little in the president's stomach at the time of the operation.

"Moreover, subsequent developments tend to show that this feature of the operation was grandly successful and that none of the contents of the stomach entered the abdominal cavity. If any of the contents had entered the cavity, the probability is that before now peritonitis would have set in."

Naval Veterans' Day at Cleveland. Perry's Victory Celebrated.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 11.—The naval veterans took first place in the festivities attendant upon the Grand Army encampment yesterday. The eighty-seventh anniversary of Oliver Hazard Perry's historic triumph on Lake Erie was fittingly celebrated in a grand parade of naval veterans and a naval display on the lake.

Other features of interest in the day's programme were as follows:

Reception by the Cleveland Yacht club, naval display on Lake Erie, the fleet being opened to the inspection of the public; dogwatch of the Asspciation of Naval Veterans at Gray's armory, campfire of Union ex-Prisoners of War at Central armory, reception for national officers of the Grand Army by Women's Relief corps at Chamber of Commerce hall, reception of ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, west side campfire at Turn hall and a lake front naval display by the United States and naval reserve boats, including illuminations and maneuvers by the fleet.

Forty Miners Entombed.

CAERPHILLY, Wales, Sept. 11.—A serious explosion took place last evening at the Llanbradach colliery, near here. Six miners have been rescued, all suffering severely from the effects of after damp, which prevents a continuance of the relief work. It is reported that forty are still entombed. The explosion occurred between shifts, rendering an accurate estimate difficult. At a late hour it became known that at least two of the miners were dead, and the total of the death roll will probably be ten, as eight have not yet been recovered. Many are seriously injured.

A Severe Criticism.

"How do you think Edith Manysummers looks with her new beau?"

"As if she might be a mother to him."—Chicago Journal.

Doctors not seldom give up a case, but a mother never does. While life lasts, while there is a spark of vitality which love's labor may fan into a flame, she toils untiringly for the child she brought into the world. And sometimes where the doctors fail the mother succeeds. She has no prejudices. Any means she will use which will save her child.

The mother's prescription given below is a case in point. Her daughter was given up by physicians as suffering from an incurable disease, called "wasting of the digestive organs." The mother prescribed Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and "Favorite Prescription," and had the happiness of seeing her daughter restored to perfect health.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It is a nerve-nourishing, flesh-forming medicine—making new blood and new life.

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. It is a true temperance medicine.

"My sister (of Arlington, Washington Co., Nebr.,) was taken very sick and had several doctors," writes Mrs. C. L. Harrison, of Elk City, Douglas Co., Nebr. They could not do her any good, and told my mother they would not come any more, as no doctor could help her, that she could not get well. She had 'wasting of the digestive organs.' My mother said to my sister: 'Well, I almost know that Dr. Pierce's medicines will cure her.' So she bought six bottles—three of 'Golden Medical Discovery' three of 'Favorite Prescription,' and some of the 'Pellets;' and now my sister is a well woman.

"We thank you for your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

—John Brannon, an Erie Railroad fireman, was almost decapitated at Sharon on Monday by striking his head against an iron bridge while the train was in motion. He was leaning far out of the engine window, looking at the drivers of the locomotive.

—The receipts of the Pennsylvania Railroad ticket office, at Sunbury, for the month of August were $10,842.90. The amount is a record breaker by over two thousand dollars. THEIR LIFE'S WORK DONE.

Many Homes Have Been Saddened by Death the Past Week.

W. N. HOSLER.

W. N. Hosler died at his residence in Jonestown, this county, Sunday morning about ten o'clock. His health for more than three years had been in a state of impair. The incipient nature of his complaint was a stroke of paralysis, which confined him to the house, until he was afflicted with a second which rendered him practically helpless. In this condition he lingered for a period of several months during all of which time he suffered terrible pains.

Mr. Hosler was well known throughout Columbia County, he having made the acquaintance of many people while connected with the office of Sheriff. It will be remembered that he served as Deputy Sheriff during John Mourey's term.

In early life, while yet in his 'teens, he left home without the knowledge of his parents and enlisted in the service of his country. He was brought home however by his father, but his great desire to be a soldier was gratified, and after gaining the consent of his father he enlisted in Company I 143rd Regiment of the Regular Army. He participated in the memorable Battle of Wilderness. It was in this battle that Mr. Hosler lost his right arm. He also carried with him to the grave other wounds received in this engagement.

The deceased was about fifty-eight years of age and leaves a family of a wife and four children to mourn his demise. The children are scattered. Kent lives in Pittsburg, Rush in Indian Territory, William in Benton, and Miss Anna at home.

The funeral was held yesterday morning. Services were coducted by Rev. A. Houtz. The funeral arrangements were in charge of C. G. Jackson Post, G. A. R., of Berwick.

M. C. WOODWARD.

Seldom indeed does a more extended period of suffering and affliction fall to the lot of man. than that which closed the earthly career of Martin C. Woodward, at his home on East street, Monday morning. For six years or more he had been kept in doors by a cancer, which at first made its appearance near the the left eye. It continued in spite of the best treatment to eat the flesh until the left side of his face was robbed of all human semblance. And then to add to this great agony, he was the victim of a severe rupture.

Mr. Woodward served many years as tax collector of Bloomsburg, and high constable. He was a capable official and his service in both instances was marked by a conscientious devotion to duty. He was a man of few words and a single utterance from him would always put the would be peace disturbers to rout.

The deceased was eighty five years of age and is survived by an adopted daughter, Mrs. Oliver McHenry of Berwick.

The funeral took place from his late residence yesterday morning at ten o'clock, Rev. H. C. Monroe, of White Hall officiating.

WILLIAM H. HARTMAN.

William H. Hartman was found dead in bed at the home of his son-in-law Arthur Pursel, who resides on the Geo. M. Hughes farm on the River road, Tuesday morning He retired Monday night in his usual health. Tuesday morning he did not arise early as had been his wont, and a member of the family went to his room to awaken him. Several calls failed to bring an answer and upon opening the door he was discovered cold in death. From the appearance of the bed it was evident that the end had come suddenly and without any struggle.

Mr. Hartman was about seventy years of age. His survivors are three children, Rev, W. W. Hartman of St. Mary's, Mrs. Jacob Harris, Buckhorn and Mrs Pursel. The funeral occurred this morning.

MRS. SARAH A. BOSTON.

Mrs. Sarah A. Boston died at her home in Benton, early Saturday morning. The direct cause of death is not known, as symptoms of various diseases manifested themselves during her illness. She was sixty-nine years of age. Her maiden name was Pennington, a daughter of the late Jonathan Pennington of Fairmount Springs. Three daughters, all married, survive. They are Mrs. H. M. Phillips of Benton, with whom she had been living, Mrs. William Culver of Harveyville, and Mrs. George Goodman of New Columbus.

Rev. William Mather conducted the funeral services at the Benton M. E. church Monday afternoon.

CHARLES E. FISHER.

The death of Charles E. Fisher, at his home in Rupert, Wednesday afternoon, was wholly unexpected, and, consequently, a great shock to the people of that community. His death was due to Bright's disease, and after a brief illness. On Thursday of the previous week he was attending to his duties as fireman on a section of the P. & R. Railway, a position he has held for nearly thirty years, when he was taken ill. He was removed to his home, but the disease refused to yield to medical treatment, and surrounded by his family, of a wife and four children, he passed away. The funeral took place on Saturday. The remains were taken to Catawissa for interment.

BENJAMIN F. DOLLMAN

The subject of this sketch died after a protracted illness at his home in Catawissa Wednesday of last week. He had been in poor health for years, but he patiently endured the prolonged agony without complaint. He was a tailor by trade, but worked very little at it. The latter part of his life, up to the time that ill health prevented, he was engaged in the raising and sale of fruit trees. He was seventy-nine years of age. Four children, one daughter and three sons, survive.

MRS. HENRY SUMMERS.

Mrs. Henry Summers died Saturday afternoon at the home of her son-in-law, Jeremiah Gross on East Third Street. She was a little past fifty seven years of age, and is survived by a husband and six children, the daughter above mentioned, Edward, residing at Rupert, Harvey of Almedia, George and John of Exchange and Charles of Light Street.

While driving over the river hill toward Mainville, Friday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shuman of Espy were precipitated over a rather steep embankment. Mrs. Shuman had her left ankle dislocated. Mr. Shuman escaped uninjured. The accident was caused by the horse backing up. The flies, which are numerous in the woods at this season of the year had attacked the animal, and he had stopped apparently in an attempt to shake them off, when the weight of the vehicle pulled the horse back and all went over the bank. The great wonder is that they escaped without more serious injury.

R. C. Shannon of Riverside, attempted self distruction by taking a dose of paris green one day last week. He was found by his wife, and a physician was sent for. He was said to be in strained financial circumstances, and this coupled with a sunstroke with which he was afflicted several weeks ago, is believed to have caused him to commit the act. He was a florist and gardener and has at different times attended the curbstone market in this town. He died on Saturday.
